This policy refers to the new Commonwealth Privacy Amendment (Private Sector) Act, 2000, which is an adjunct to the Privacy Act 1988. The policy applies to persons who are not employed by Macquarie Generation: for example, service providers and contractors, and recognises the importance of privacy protection of those persons.

The information provided to Macquarie Generation as part of personal dealings with it is defined as “personal information” under the Act.

In meeting its obligations, where Macquarie Generation needs to collect or use personal information, it does so:

- to assist with or improve operations and procedures, or the services provided by the Corporation as an energy generator; or
- if required by law.

Where disclosure of personal information to another organisation is required, Macquarie Generation will ensure this disclosure complies with its obligations, according to the Act.

Macquarie Generation will use reasonable processes to ensure the personal information it holds is accurate and up-to-date, and will ensure that persons have a right to access and alter incorrect personal information held by the Corporation.

A range of security measures are in place to protect personal information held to ensure against unauthorised access, misuse and corruption. “Corporate Standard CS 001: Privacy Compliance”, supports this Policy and outlines the procedures for managing Macquarie Generation’s privacy obligations.
